We would like to see the 3rd option considered i.e. Maintain a small presence in the city and develop a new church and administration centre in Pyes Pa.

Is the focus on individual parishioners or should we be thinking of the whole church community?

The church is in a very fortunate position of having a valuable asset in the existing land.

To be able to sell all or part of the Elizabeth site, then be in a position to rebuild a smaller presence in town and build a purpose built community centred church and administration block with the proceeds, would maybe eliminate the need for parishioners to contribute to the expenditure involved.

Surely after mistakes 30 years ago, the focus has to be on the future needs of a fast growing community.

The fact that the college is located in Pyes Pa, the Catholic community will continue to be drawn to the area. The parents and pupils and future generations are the future of our church and community.

Geographically Pyes Pa is very accessible for the community to gather from all directions.
